THIS Catalogue contains the entire collection of Autographs as left by the late Mr. TEFFT, with three exceptions—two Letters sent to a gentleman in Philadelphia, to fulfil a promise of Mr. Tefft, and a duplicate copy of a book sold to a gentleman in New York, of which Mr. Tefft possessed two; and the other copy is in this sale. With regard to the value and genuineness of the collection, we append a short note from Rev. Dr. SPRAGUE.

ALBANY, August, 1866.

GENTLEMEN:

My acquaintance with Mr. Tefft commenced in the fall of 1830, when his Collection of Autographs was in a very incipient state—probably did not amount to more than twenty or thirty. Though I have never seen it since that time, I have been apprised of its gradual and rapid increase, and have no doubt that it is now one of the most valuable collections in the world. And I think you may feel perfectly assured of the genuineness of all the specimens; not merely on account of Mr. Tefft's incorruptible integrity, but because his discriminating and practised eye could never be imposed upon. I have no doubt that you will be able to dispose of the collection to excellent advantage. * * * *

Very respectfully, yours,

W. B. SPRAGUE.

Autographs, and Autograph Collectors.

"I have never met with one,"—wrote me, many years ago, a learned and accomplished Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, who yet lives to adorn the bench—"but might not an interesting essay be written to show the intellectual advantages and pleasure resulting from Autograph Collections, apart from the gratification merely of a liberal curiosity?" Undoubtedly there might, most respected Associate Justice! and thus, by your leave, I put your inquiry in print, and commend it to the attention of Emerson, or Whipple, or Tuckerman, either of whom is more than capable of doing full justice to your suggestion.

But without presuming to attempt an "Essay" on the subject, I will venture here to point out two of the advantages which may—nay, I think, must—result from such Collections. And first: ("An Autograph Collection," &c.)

An Aut graph Collection may be made an admirable adjunct to the Study of History and Biography.—The very possession of a letter, written by a celebrated person, naturally leads us to wish to know all about him—his personal history, and that of the times in which he lived—and to look to revive and freshen our recollections of what we may have read or learned in relation to him. A large general collection (not restricted to any one particular class or nation), well selected and judiciously arranged and illustrated as it should be, is in itself a compendium of History and Biography, or, at least, of so much as relates to the times and the men embraced in its scope. The illustrations should be, so far as is practicable: First, a good Portrait of the person whose Autograph is to be thus illustrated. Secondly, a brief and truthful Biographical Sketch, which may be best obtained by cutting up some good, cheap Biographical Dictionary, such as "Peter Parley's Popular Biography," or Maunder's "Biographical Treasury." Thirdly, suc other "Historical, Biographical, and Anecdotical Matter," relatin to the individual and his life and times, as may be gathered i cuttings from the newspapers and other sources. And fourthly Written Memoranda of the same character, the result of judicious annotations from the Collector's own general course of reading.

Another and very important advantage of such Collections which I venture here to suggest, is the consideration that they ar eminently conducive to PATRIOTISM. No man who has sought—a the cost of much time, labor, and expense, not to speak of th
"vexation of spirit" arising from frequently repeated disappoint ments in the search after some especially rare name—to form a truly valuable collection of Autographs of the great and good men, whose actions and writings have reflected lustre upon thei country and his own, and who has persevered in so doing, through a long series of years, animated by the same feelings of admiration and reverence which first led him to desire to possess such relics o his illustrious countrymen, can fail to be a better patriot—more and more confirmed in his love of country with every fresh accession to his collection of such memorials of her great men. And NO AMER ICAN, especially, who has with so much difficulty, and after long delay, completed a collection of the Signatures of all the "SIGNERS OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE" and "FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES"—Generals of the Revolu tionary War—the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the United States —the Chief and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, with all the members of the various Cabinets, and other high officers of our Gov ernment, from its first organization under Washington down to the present time, can feel otherwise than personally interested (selfishly, i you will) in the preservation of THE UNION—more determinedly than ever opposed to any attempt to divide the country or overthrow the Government; since the success of such attempt would but have the effect (in addition to other and graver considerations) of rendering the fruits of all his labors, if not wholly worthless, greatly dimin ished in their value and interest, as a complete record of HIS COUN TRY, and his own most illustrious countrymen.

The great interest which the true Collector takes in Autographs those especially of very great and worthily famous men, partakes largely of reverence—the feeling which leads the devout Catholic t venerate the relics, real or supposed, of the saints. Besides show ing us how he wrote, and what he said, an autograph letter of great man is the most assured and reliable personal relic of him that remains when he is gone. Other relics are open to doubt and suspicion. Luther's Bible, Newton's Inkstand, Franklin's Cane, or Napoleon's Snuff-box may be shown us, but we feel that they may or may not be the things so represented. Where is the evidence of their identity? Other old Bibles, inkstands, and canes, or snuff-boxes might be substituted for these, and how would we distinguish the difference? But the autographs of Luther and Melancthon, Newton and Franklin, Napoleon and Washington, are as well known in our day as in their own; and any attempt to palm off as their writing, that which is not, can be as readily and as certainly detected—and even more so—by the experienced Autographologist, as is the counterfeit note or forged check by the "expert" bank-teller.

But this is not the time or place, nor is the writer the person to offer a lengthy disputation, such as is suggested by the inquiry of Judge W—— "on the advantages of Autograph Collections." My present purpose is merely to give a few rambling notes and reminiscences of some of the leading autograph collectors, and their collections in this country. Before dismissing, however, this branch of the subject, I cannot resist the temptation to show our readers how little the learned editor of the "Encyclopædia Americana" could find to say about autographs, in this country, some thirty-five years ago. Here is his article entire:

"Autographs (Gr.) Manuscripts written by the author himself, in distinction from copies. They are more highly esteemed than the latter, not only as interesting relics, but also as more correct and free from faults than those copied by another hand. Some collections of autographs of famous men are very interesting."

The taste for autographs, and the number of persons who collect them, have, of late years, wonderfully increased in this country. Thirty years ago, when the accidental possession of the signatures of two or three of the Presidents of the United States—Madison, Monroe, and J. Q. Adams—led me to wish for others, and induced me first to attempt the formation of a small collection of some of the most distinguished living American statesmen and authors, I did not then know that such an idea had ever occurred to any one else. The three principal American collectors at that time were the Rev. Wm. B. Sprague, D. D., of Albany, N. Y.; Robert Gilmor, Esq., of Baltimore; and the late lamented I. K. Tefft, Esq., of Savannah, Ga. Others there probably were, but in a smaller way, and not so generally known as collectors; one of whom was the late B. B. Thatcher, of Boston, author of the "Lives of the American Indians," and who died in 1840. Of an earlier date was the lamented Thos. S. Grimke, the talented scholar and orator of Charleston, S. C., who died of cholera while on a visit to Ohio, in the fall of 1834. Of a little later period were several who are still known as industrious and successful collectors, the most prominent being Mr. Mellen Chamberlain, of Boston; Major Ben Perley Poore, of Newburyport; Mrs. E. H. Allen, of Providence; Messrs. R. C. Davis, F. Etting, and F. J. Dreer, of Philadelphia, and Professor R. W. Gibbes (recently deceased), of Columbia, S. C.*

Of the three first mentioned, I had always supposed Dr. Sprague's collection, commenced about 1820, the first in priority of time, as it is well known to be in size and importance, in this country, until Mr. Tefft informed me that he himself commenced collecting as far back as 1815–'16, although, as he naïvely added, "he kept it very quiet at first, feeling for some years rather shy of being known as a collector of such things." Dr. Sprague still lives (long may he do so!), the recognized patriarch of the profession of autograph collectors in America. His immense collection contains, it is believed, not less than fifty thousand letters and MSS., many of them, however, being duplicates of the same names. He has always been noted for his great liberality in sharing with other collectors the autographic treasures which his early entrance into the field, and the superior facilities thereby enjoyed, formerly enabled him to gather, to an extent that is unattainable by the collectors of the present day. To Dr. Sprague, more than to any other single individual in the country, are we probably indebted for the discovery and preservation of large masses of invaluable correspondence of the Colonial and Revolutionary times, which, in old trunks and boxes, in garrets and cellars, were fast hastening to decay, and exposed daily by accident or carelessness, to destruction, until rescued by his zealous and untiring researches. Of late years his time has been so

* A list of all the autograph collectors in the United States, so far as then known, was given some twelve years ago, in the "Bizarre," a sprightly magazine then published in Philadelphia. Such a list of the collectors of the present day would be a desideratum.

The "Organ für Autographens ammler und Autographen händler," published at Jena, in January, 1859, contained a list of over 200 European collectors; among them Prince Metternich, Franz Liszt, the pianist, and Baron James Rothschild, of Paris; with the princely and royal names of Ernest II., Duke of Saxe Coburg; the Archduke Stephen, of Austria; and her Majesty Queen Victoria, London!

entirely devoted, in connection with his ministerial duties, to his great work, "The American Pulpit," that for some time past he has almost wholly given up his once favorite pursuit.

Mr. Gilmor's father was a merchant in Baltimore, during and subsequent to the American Revolution, and his extensive and carefully preserved business correspondence, descending to the son, formed the nucleus of his collection, to which he added largely by exchange and purchase, at home and abroad. As a collector, in his exchanges with others, he had the reputation of being rather close and illiberal, and of rigidly exacting the "quid pro quo" in all such transactions. In 1841, he printed, for private distribution, a catalogue of the foreign autographs in his collection. Mr. Gilmor died some twenty years ago, and his autograph collection, entire, was purchased by Mr. Dreer, of Philadelphia, and now forms an important part of the rich and valuable gatherings of that gentleman.

With the late Mr. Tefft my acquaintance commenced by the interchange of letters, in the winter of 1840-41. For such few duplicates as I was able at that time to offer him, he sent me a return tenfold in number, as well as in value. Our correspondence continued, cordial and uninterrupted, for nearly twenty years before we met. His letters were always kind and friendly, often personal and confidential. His congratulations on my marriage were among the warmest and heartiest that I received; and his letters announcing the death of his sons, and calling on me for condolence and sympathy, were as frankly confiding as if written to a brother. I saw him for the first and only time in New York, in September, 1860, just before the outbreak of the rebellion, and during his last visit to the North. I shall never forget his first question, after we had exchanged greetings: "How do you think the Presidential election will result—who will be the next President?" I told him that, having just passed, on my way East, through the great States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and New York, there was not a doubt in my mind, and that I regarded the election of Mr. Lincoln as certain. "God bless me!" said he, "don't tell me so! I hope not." "Why so?" "Because, if he should be, I am afraid the South will secede." Knowing him to be a devoted Union man at heart, and seeing the topic was painful to him, I at once changed the subject. We spent together a week in New York, and another in Philadelphia, rummaging among the old book and print shops, and examining the collections of such amateurs as we made acquaintance with, and then parted for our respective homes. His health was even then very poor, and the war not long after breaking out, I never heard from him again; and only learned, incidentally, some time afterward, of his death, which occurred about a year subsequent to his return to Savannah. Shortly after the close of the war, and the resumption of postal communication with the South, I was much gratified to receive a letter from a gentleman of Savannah, who, in answer to my inquiries, wrote: "I knew Mr. Tefft intimately, and am happy to inform you that his valuable collections have passed safely through the war." Mrs. Tefft, to whom his collection reverted at his death, being now compelled by losses, and the depreciation of property at the South, incidental to the war, to part with it, the entire collection has been sent to New York, and will be sold there at auction, in the month of Febraary. Such a sale will be an event in the annals of autograph collecting in the United States.

In a little work entitled "The Poetry of Travelling in the United States," by Mrs. Caroline Gilman, published in 1838, is an article from the pen of her husband, Rev. Dr. Gilman, under the head of "A Week Among Autographs," giving some account of Mr. Tefft's collection as it then was, from which I extract the following: "This gentleman has devoted a portion of his leisure, for several years to the collection of Autographs, or specimens of original handwriting by eminent persons of various ages and countries. If it were not otherwise known that his literary taste and habits had peculiarly fitted him for such an occupation, the fact would be sufficiently evident from the actual fruits of his researches. His compilation of manuscripts by different writers, nearly all of whom have been persons in some way or other of considerable distinction, amounts to about five thousand articles." A comparison of this statement with the catalogue now before us, will show the prodigious growth of Mr. T's collection during the last twenty-two years of his life, or from 1838 to 1860. The collection, as here catalogued, contains a little over 2,600 numbers, in lots averaging, perhaps, ten or twelve names to a number; showing the collection, therefore, to contain now from twenty-five to thirty thousand autographs. So large and valuable a collection is rarely sent to auction, even in Europe. Such a one has never before been offered for sale in America. It will give to the old collectors a chance to fill up many a gap in their collections with rare and important names "long sought, but never found," and will afford to new beginners an opportunity, seldom offered, of obtaining, with little trouble, and at much less expense than in any other way, all those more common, but always desirable names, which will give at once a respectable start to their proposed collections. For the sake of an old friend, we sincerely hope that the sale may be largely attended, and the biddings liberal, and that the result may be to realize for his widow a sufficient sum to give competence and comfort to her declining years.

An analysis of the Catalogue before us shows Mr. Tefft's collection particularly rich in our early Colonial Governors, and the Generals of the American Revolution. Of the former there are, with many others, letters or documents of Barefoot, Cranfield, Partridge, Usher, Waldron, and the two Wentworths, of N. H.; Bellingham, Bradstreet, Burnet, Bernard, Gage, Hutchinson, Oliver, S. Phipps, Pownal, Shirley, and Winthrop, of Mass.; Sir Edmund Andross, Gov. of N. Y., and President of New England; Burnet, the elder George Clinton, Lord Cornbury, Dongan, Dunmore, Hardy, Hunter, Tryon, and Rip Van Dam, of N. Y.; Boone, William Franklin, J. Hardy, and Reading, of N. J.; Sharpe and Insker, of Md.; Dinwiddie, of Va.; Bull, Glen, and Lyttleton, of S. C.; Ellis, Wright, and Habersham, of Georgia. Dr. Gilman, in his notice of Mr. Tefft's collection in 1838, speaks of a letter of Gen. Oglethorpe, written when in Georgia, of which we see no mention in the Catalogue. Of the Generals of the Revolution, we find Ethan Allen, Benedict Arnold, John Cadwallader, George and James Clinton, Conway, Dayton, Gadsden, Gansevoort, Gates, Gist, Greene, Hand, Hazen, Heath, Howe, Huger, Huntington, Irvine, Charles Lee, H. Lee ("Light Horse Harry"), Lincoln, Marion, McIntosh, McDougall, Mifflin, Montgomery, Morgan, Moultrie, Moylan, Parsons, Pickens, Pinckney, Poor, Putnam, Jos. Reed, Schuyler, Scott, Smallwood, Spencer, St. Clair, Stark, Stirling, Sullivan, Sumner, Sumter, Thompson, Varnum, Ward, Washington (five letters and three signatures), William Washington, Warren, Wayne, Weedon, Whitcomb, Williams, Woodford, and Wooster. Of foreign officers who fought for American independence, we meet the names of De Kalb, De Grasse, D'Estaing, Kosciusko, Lafayette, Pulaski, Rochambeau, Steuben, and others of lesser note; and of the English generals of our Colonial and Revolutionary times, Amherst, Bradstreet, Braddock, Burgoyne, Sir Guy Carleton, Gage, Sir William Johnson, Cornwallis, Rawdon, and Tarleton.

The leading STATESMEN of our Revolutionary period and the subsequent early days of the Republic who are here presented to view, are Fisher Ames, Theodoric Bland, Aaron Burr (of whom and his family there are eight papers), Silas Deane, Franklin, Hamilton, Patrick Henry (three letters), John Jay, Thomas Jefferson (seven letters), Andrew Jackson (eight letters), Rufus King, Henry Laurens (eight letters), Arthur Lee, the Pinckneys (Charles, Thomas, and Charles Cotesworth), John Randolph, and a host of others of a later day.

Of LITERARY and MISCELLANEOUS names of note in the American portion of the Collection, will we find Joel Barlow, Bancroft, Charles Brockden Brown, Fenimore Cooper, Washington Irving (of whom there are four letters and three MSS.), Lindley Murray, Thomas Paine, Percival, Poe, Prescott, Ramsay, and others. The ARTISTS—Allston, Cole, Greenough, Powers, Sully (with a sketch), Trumbull, Vanderlyn, and De Vaux. MEN OF SCIENCE: Audubon, William Bartram, Dr. Bowditch, Dr. Priestley, Rittenhouse, the astronomer, Soy, the naturalist, and Eli Whitney, the inventor of the cotton-gin.

The CLERGY are well represented in Mather Byles (of facetious memory), Bishop (afterward Cardinal) Cheverus, Rev. James Caldwell, of New Jersey, murdered by the British in the Revolution, President Dwight, John Eliot, apostle to the Indians (an A. L. S. of whom is one of the rarest specimens in the whole Collection), the missionaries Heckewelder, Fisk, and Judson; Increase Mather, and his still more famous son, Cotton Mather, of whom we have here both a letter and a MS. sermon; John Sergeant, Prest. Stiles, Dr. Stephen West, and the Rev. John Williams, author of the "Redeemed Captive." There is also an interesting series of the Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, including Bishops Seabury, White, Claggett, Parker, Hobart, Dehon, Chase, Doane, and others of later date.

Among the celebrities who can hardly be classified other than as "MISCELLANEOUS," are Mrs. Abigail Adams, Theodosia Burr, Mrs. Deborah Franklin (wife of Dr. F.), and that undaunted South Carolina heroine, Mrs. Rebecca Motte; William Bradford, the early printer; William Penn (a superb letter of 4 pp., 4to), Hannah, his wife, and the Lady Juliana Penn; Brandt, the Indian Chief; Daniel Boone and Simon Kenton, the Western pioneers; Lewis and Clark, the explorers of the Rocky Mou tains; Dr. Kane, Colonel Davy Crockett, Gen. Santa Anna; Iturbide, emperor of Mexico; Toussaint L'Ouverture, the greatest hero of the negro race in modern times; and General William Walker, the Nicaraguan filibuster.

Besides the series of American Bishops just referred to, there are several other series or classes of names grouped together, in which the interest chiefly depends upon the completeness of the series. Of these, the "Presidents of the Continental Congresses," 1774 to 1788, wants only Nathaniel Gorham to be full. The set of "Vice-Presidents of the U. S." is complete from John Adams to Fillmore; so also are the "Secretaries of the Treasury," from Hamilton to Corwin, and "Secretaries of War," from Knox to Floyd. The list of "Secretaries of the Navy" is full, down to Isaac Toucey, with the exception of Jacob Crowinshield: and here are all the "Attorneys-General," from Edmund Randolph to Mr. Buchanan's legal adviser, J. S. Black, while but one "Postmaster General" (N. K. Hall) is missing, from Osgood to Campbell. Strange to say, the set of "Secretaries of State" lacks three of the most distinguished of the number, and those, too, whose autographs are perhaps more abundant than those of any other three men of equal distinction, namely, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, and Daniel Webster. Letters of each are plenty in other parts of the Collection, but either Mr. Tefft or the compiler of the Catalogue has forgotten to insert them here. There are also sets of the "Chief and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the U. S.," and the "Speakers of Congress," but the last two lack many names of being complete, even down to the time to which Mr. Tefft has brought them.

Some very interesting names are contained in the class of "Naval Commanders," such as Barry, Barney, Barron, Bainbridge, Blakely, Dale, Decatur, Elliott, Hull, Paul Jones (a fine Revolutionary letter), Manly, Murray, the Nicholsons, Porter, Stewart, Talbot, Truxton, and Warrington—names identified with the brightest period of our naval history, and the wearers of which have all passed away, with but one exception. The veteran Commodore (now Admiral) Charles Stewart—"Old Ironsides"—still survives, at the venerable age of 88 years.

But the crowning glory of the Tefft Collection lies in the two bound volumes (Catalogue Nos. 1793 and 1794) containing the "Signers of the Constitution of the United States," and the "Signers of the Declaration of Independence." In the former are contained thirty-three letters, five documents, and one signature, representing all the "Signers of the Constitution;" and in addition to those, there are letters and signatures of all the other members of the Federal Convention of 1787—those who assisted to frame the Constitution, but who did not sign it—except two, Wm. Churchill Houston, of New Jersey, and James McClurg, of Virginia. It also includes the names of Peyton Randolph, the first President of the Continental Congress, and General Knox, the first Secretary of War of the United States; but as neither of them was a member of the Convention, we are quite at a loss to imagine why they have been assigned a place here.

The second of these volumes contains fifty-one letters or documents and five signatures, making the entire number of the illustrious fifty-six who signed their names to the "Declaration of Independence." To these are added Robt. R. Livingston and Thos. Willing, who were in Congress, and voted in favor of independence, but did not sign the Declaration; and John Dickinson, who voted against the measure; together with Charles Thomson, Secretary of Congress, and signer of the Declaration ex officio. The propriety of including in a collection of autographs of the signers of the Declaration of Independence those who did not sign it, may be considered questionable, but if done at all, certainly all who cast their votes in favor of the measure, should be thus honored; and in like connection with those of Livingston and Willing, should be found the name of George Clinton, of New York, who also voted for the Declaration, but left Congress to join the army before it was engrossed and signed.

And here we take occasion to put in our protest against both the justice and the policy (in a pecuniary point of view) of the manner in which these two priceless collections of signers are catalogued and offered for sale, en masse. There are only some five or six complete collections of the autographs of the signers of the Declaration of Independence known to exist, while there are probably more than one hundred collectors whose endeavors to form such a series have been crowned with only partial success. The first aim of the American collector is to attempt a set of the "Signers of the Declaration;" his second may be, either the "Signers of the Constitution," or "Generals of the Revolutionary War," or "Presidents of the United States, and Officers of the Cabinet." Collectors whose persevering researches and industrious labors, during a long course of years, only enable them to show one-half or two-thirds, or it may be seven-eighths of the entire number belonging to each of the above-named classes, have been looking forward to the sale of this immense Collection for an opportunity of completing some of these important series, by the purchase of such names as are still wanting in their own collections. This, the present catalogue arrangement and proposed sale, at auction, of the Tefft Collection will enable many of them to do, so far as relates to the two last-named classes, but not the two first and most important. Those who have been ten or twenty years in collecting say three-fourths of the signers, will not like to discard the pet fruits of their labors for an entirely new set, even though complete; nor will many of them feel either able or willing to pay the value of the whole collection for the one-fourth part which is alone most desirable to them. The effect will be to drive most of the present collectors from the field, and to throw these two "invaluable volumes" open to the competition only of the few wealthy persons who have never attempted such collections, but who may be enticed by so tempting an opportunity of securing, at the expense of DOLLARS only, that which it has cost the true collector so infinitely much more in time, labor, and money, to bring together. Each of these letters of the signers of the Declaration and Constitution should be sold separately, and the contents of these two volumes, disposed of in that way, would, we believe, result in a much larger aggregate sum than they will produce, if sold as thus catalogued. If the letters are only inserted, and can be taken out of the volumes, without being injured in the process, it may be not yet too late to act upon this suggestion, which we strongly commend to the consideration of our friends the auctioneers, on the day of the sale.*

All are admonished by the length of this article that there is but little room left us in which to notice the foreign portion of Mr. Tefft's Collection. A brief glance at some of the leading features of that part of the Catalogue is, therefore, all that will be attempted. It is, of course, much less numerous than the American portion, though scarcely less interesting and valuable of its kind. It has, at least in one respect, the advantage over the American collection, that it contains fewer insignificant names, or those of, at least, but local or temporary notoriety.

Among the names "whose sound has gone forth into all the lands," are such STATESMEN as Burke, Burleigh, Brougham, Canning, Castlereagh, Chatham, Oliver Cromwell, Fox, Metternich, Lord North, Harley, earl of Oxford, Palmerston, Peel, William Pitt, Rockingham, Talleyrand, and Walpole. The GENERALS: Marlborough, Condé, Frederick the Great, Marshal Saxe, and Wellington. LAWYERS: Blackstone, Erskine, Eldon, Sir William Jones, Lyndhurst, Mansfield. POETS and NOVELISTS: Addison, Bulwer, Burns (a letter to Dugald Stewart, with four of his reports as gauger), Byron (two letters), Campbell, Coleridge, Chateaubriand, Dickens, Goethe, Herder, Hogg, T. Hood, Victor Hugo, Klopstock, Lamartine, Rogers, Walter Scott (letter, note, and MSS.), Southey, Sterne (signature), Tennyson, Voltaire, Wieland, Henry Kirke White (a leaf from his Diary), and John Wilson. HISTORIANS: Alison, Guizot, Macaulay, Thiers, and others. DIVINES: Hugh Blair, Adam Clarke, John Wesley, and Whitefield. MEN OF SCIENCE: Condorcet, Cuvier, Sir H. Davy, La Place, Leibnitz, and Count Rumford. ARTISTS: Chantry, Constable, Etty, Eastlake, Fuseli, Flaxman, Haydon, Lawrence, Turner, West, Wilkie, and Sir Christopher Wren. Of DISTINGUISHED FEMALES we have Joanna Baillie, Mrs. Barbauld, Lady Blessington, Madame de Staël, George Sand, Miss Edgeworth, Mrs. Hemans, "L. E. L.," Hannah More, Mrs. Norton, Mrs. Opie, Miss Jane Porter, Catharine de Medicis, and Christina of Sweden. Among MISCELLANEOUS names of note are King Louis of Bavaria, Mozart and Beethoven, Jeremy Bentham, Carlyle, Cobbett, De Quincey, Warren Hastings, Charles Lamb, Melancthon, S. Pepys ("His Diary"), Talfourd, and Volney, author of the "Ruins."

There are several very important series, more or less complete, among which we may only allude to the Kings and Queens of England, from Henry VII. to Victoria, inclusive; Kings of France, from Louis XI. (1461) to Louis Philippe, including a very interesting collection (24 Autographs) of the great Napoleon, his family, and friends; the famous Generals of the Republic and first Empire—Augereau, Bernadotte, Duroc, Hoche, Junot, Kleber, Massena, Moreau, Murat, Ney, Soult, and others. There is also a remarkably fine and full collection of the leading actors in the French Revolution and members of the National Convention —Robespierre, St. Just, Sieyes, Tallien, Carnot, Mirabeau (père), Bailly, Roland, Orleans-Egalité, Barras, Cambacérès, Fouché, and many others of the same class.

American collectors are generally too much inclined to undervalue foreign autographs. No person who desires to be considered even moderately well informed, would think of limiting his course of reading or study in History and Biography to the narrow nativism of the past events or heroic men of his own country alone. Yet many collectors here avowedly confine their researches to American names, and contemptuously exclude from their collections all those whose fame, however great and worthy, is of European origin. There can be no more useful, as well as interesting, adjunct to the study of History than the letters of the great men who have made as well as written it; and the true collector, no less than the thorough student, should be cosmopolitan in his labors and researches. He, of all others, should proudly adopt and be fully imbued with the sentiment:

> "No pent-up Utica contracts our powers,
> The whole unbounded Universe is ours!"

THE "TEFFT" AUTOGRAPH SALE IN PARIS.

The approaching sale at auction of Mr. Tefft's immense Autograph Collection is, we observe, attracting attention even in Europe. The last number of the Revue des Autographes, a monthly paper, published in Paris, devoted to the curiosities of history and biography, contains an article which we translate, as follows:

From the "Revue des Autographes," Paris.

"A Sale of Autographs in New York.

"We have received from New York the proof-sheets of a catalogue of autographs of no less than 262 pages 8vo, comprising 2,630 numbers, and it is to be observed that frequently five or six names are classed together under the same number. This voluminous collection has been made by the late Mr. Tefft, of Savannah. One of the friends of the deceased, Mr. Gilmore Simms, a celebrated American poet and novelist, has contributed to it a notice, in the shape of a letter, addressed to the persons having charge of the sale of the collection, dated Brooklyn, October 3d. This prefatory notice appears to us sufficiently curious to find a place in our pages, and we give here a literal translation of the article."

[Here follows Mr. Simms's letter in full, for which we refer all those interested, who have not seen it, to the catalogue in question.]

The editor then goes on to say:

"Will this wish of Mr. Simms be realized? It is doubtful. If the sale takes place, it will be, so it is announced, in the month of March. We have as yet only received the proofs, as before mentioned, and await the catalogues. As soon as they shall have arrived, we will hasten to place them at the disposal of any who desire them.

"This [collection ought to possess a great interest for Americans, for it is eminently American; while for us, among the countless luminaries who have lit up the country over there, we recognize only a few — those who have cast their brilliancy across the Atlantic. Such are the following celebrities, of whom we find autograph letters signed, in the catalogue: John Adams, Benedict Arnold, Fenimore Cooper, Jefferson Davis, Benjamin Franklin, President W. H. Harrison, President Boyer, of Hayti, Washington Irving, President Andrew Jackson, President Thomas Jefferson, Thaddeus Kosciusko, Joseph Lancaster, President James Monroe, Thomas Paine, William Penn, Edgar Poe, and Washington.

"Among the autographs called foreign, classified separately, and which fill one-third of the catalogue, we notice: John Barrow (celebrated traveller), L. Beethoven (the great composer), Lord Byron, George Canning, Madame de Staël, Charles Dickens, Dumont D'Urville, Comte D'Estaing, General Moreau, Robespierre, (signature), Mirabeau, Brissot, Orleans-Egalité, Em. Gody, Goethe, Kersiant, Lafayette, Le Vaillant, Mozart (autograph letter to his father), John Ross (the voyager), Walter Scott, Talma, and Valazé.

"The collection includes series of American Bishops, Governors of Georgia, the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the Union, Secretaries of State, officers of the army and navy, Postmasters-General, subordinates of Washington during the War of Independence, and two precious volumes, containing a series of the signers of the constitution of the United States, September 17, 1787, and another of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

"The catalogue contains no analysis of the pieces, but in its dryness does not want for clearness. It states whether the specimen is a letter or a document, whether it is autographed and signed, or autograph alone, or only signed. The number of pages is also mentioned, but rarely the address. The French names are bungled in a manner sometimes very amusing. But we must not complain too much of this, for we should be perhaps still more barbarous if we had to write and print so large a number of (to us) Foreign names."

The following is a letter from Mr. W. Gilmore Simms, who for many years was an intimate friend of the late Mr. Tefft, relating to these autographs and the years of time and labor expended in acquiring them: —

Brooklyn, October 3, 1866.

Messrs. Leavitt, Strebeigh & Co:

Gentlemen: I was just pulling on my boots, preparatory to my departure for the South, when your letter was received, and it is not easy at such a moment, while packing boxes and "closing rivets up," even to address myself to the task which you have set me. To do full justice to it, and make a becoming report to you, or to the public, in respect to the autographical collection of my late excellent and venerable friend, I. K. Tefft, would be on my part, at any time, simply an impossibility. I have never myself been a collector of autographs, though frequently a dispenser of them, and possess and profess none of the qualities necessary to an expert. But, surely, in the case of Mr. Tefft and his collection, the American people can need no information now. He has been, proverbially, for the last thirty years the best known and most notoriously active of all the collectors of such material in the United States. He is the Upcott of America, as we should be apt to style the English Upcott the Tefft of Great Britain. Both seem to have pursued a like plan in their collections, and both, in similar degree, have gone beyond all contemporaries.

I take for granted that no collection in this country can well compare with that of my late excellent and much lamented friend. What I know of autography was imbibed from him. Knowing him intimately — frequently his guest — always indeed, when, during th last thirty years, I have happened to visit Savannah, it was morall impossible that I should escape his specialty, or fail to imbibe som thing from his peculiar passion. With him, it was indeed a passion his pleasant study through the day, his dream of pleasure throug the night. His natural tastes — his own talents, which were excellen — his judgment, which was sound — and the indefatigable diligenc which he brought to bear upon this one pursuit, must have led t very great success in its prosecution.

But he possessed other advantages. Hospitable without limit, m friend welcomed to his house the distinguished persons of all coun tries, and made them inmates of his home. There might you mee with the Martineaus, the Thackerays, the Bremers, the Halls, th Hamiltons, my Lord of Morpeth, and the Prince Achille Murat With an annual supply of such guests, foreign and native, my frien found it easy to increase that capital, in the accumulation of which alone, might he be accused of avarice. Never was mortal more avi in the pursuit of gains in letters and manuscripts. His gentleness tender consideration, mild and grateful manners, and general thougl unobtrusive intelligence, made his way easy to the affections of others most of whom were at pains accordingly to yield him pleasure by ministering to his ruling passion. Day and night would he be found poring over his collection, with one or more friends, who sought to gratify mere curiosity or to obtain rare and valuable biographical and historical material.

His plan was such as to enable him to satisfy all classes of seekers. He was not content with the mere letter or the simple signature. He hunted up rare documents in every quarter: he traced their history, and the lives of their writers. He thus accumulated masses of fact in relation to the country as well as the individual; coupled the portrait of the individnal, wherever this was possible, with the document, and referred, for illustration of the document, to contemporary history.

It is in this mode of his proceeding, that his collection became singularly valuable, especially to the student; and to his own memory, which was of wonderful tenacity and grasp, and to his collection, have I had, scores of times, to resort, as to a joint record, for the materials which I could nowhere else discover, and for the matter illustrative of that which I already had in possession. My friend's capacity for discriminating between his documents, and deciding their respective values, had been sharpened to perfection by long practice and experience, which came to the aid of a native instinct. He was not to be imposed upon by any forgeries, however adroitly made. He brought to bear upon his papers all the tests of historical authenticity. Nor did he mistake in the relative value of his subjects, confounding the obscure with the eminent. On the contrary, while gratefully receiving, and, indeed, seeking, all manner of papers as well as correspondents, he knew well how to class them in the degree of their several merits. He knew well the rare from the common, and set a proper valuation upon the record which illustrated a life or an event; and his collection, accordingly, will, in my opinion, be found to rise in rank in comparison with most others, because of the aids which it can furnish to the biographer, the philosopher, and the historian.

I confess I should be sorry to see it dismembered. I prefer that it should be kept intact, as the good old man fondly hoped and fancied that it would be; so as to constitute for ever, to the student, a certain treasure-house of records and memorials, having its well-known locality and home, and made accessible by some noble and wealthy proprietor to the researches of the citizen. Surely there are some lordly minds among you corresponding to the lordly wealth which so many of your people possess, to whom such a collection, with such an object, should be a source of noble pride and honest satisfaction.

Let me hope that you will find it so. Knowing the pride of heart of my good old friend in making this collection, the almost lifelong interest which he had in his daily accumulations and his natural that it should remain whole, and subject to no change except in tinued accumulation by some industrious successor, I should feel m pain myself in its dispersion, and a corresponding sentiment of gr tude to that liberal gentleman who should make it his own, and for it a befitting temple. I know it to be well worthy a fine in a great city like yours; and here, worthily enshrined, it wo doubtless become a subject of like pride, attraction, and interest w your famous libraries and academies of literature, art, and science

Greatly regretting that I cannot be more full or specific on t
subject, I am your obedient servant,

W. GILMORE SIMMS.

NOTE BY THE COMPILER.

The preceding catalogue was, by some misunderstanding of the printer, never submitted to me for revision, and the reader will find many errors.

In a compilation like this, consisting chiefly of proper names, printed without a revised proof, I can hardly hold myself responsible for any orthographical or typographical mistakes; it is, however, a mortification to find so many. The following errata covers a proportion of the most noticable errors only.
